BRAXTON WAS ON A TEAR Secressors

the Judge's Sympathy.

COLORED WOMEN'S TROUBLES

Officers for Drunkenness and Profantty-Hattle Was Not Induced to Tell the Truth-Prisoners Whose Words Are Not Worth Much.

There was a liberal sprinkling of more or ess dusky females in Judge Kimball's dock when court opened this morning. They were given front seats on the anxious benef while the sterner offenders stood along the rail. The fog last night was very penetrating, and an unusually large quantity of fiery-red liquor was consumed to keep out the chill. As a result, the dock was comfortably filled this morning. Wm. Braxton, although colored, has inberent ideas on a man's constitutional right to swear and get drunk if he wants to, and last night he proceeded to liven things up in the village across the creek. Police-man Harrison happened along at the wrong moment for William, however, and in a few minutes the hilarious darky was few minutes the hilarious darky was languishing in a station house cell. "Do you want to say anything about this?" asked the court. "Yas, sir." "Well, come around here." "Git a move on you," said Bailiff Kendig, as the prisoner left the dock in a very leisurely gait. "Git into that stand." "Now, what's the trouble?" asked Judge Kimball. Kimball.

"I'm a workin' man, jedge, your honor works every day," said the prisoner.

WORKINGMAN'S LIABILITY. "Well, what were you swearing for?"
"You know, jedge, a workin' man i liable to git on a tear." "Oh, you were on a tear, were you?"
"Yas, sir."

"Well, your tean will cost you $5."
"Btep back, Braxton; you get fifteen days," said Balliff Kendig, and Braxton walked back into the cells.

days," said Bailiff Kendig, and Braxton walked back into the cells.

Hattie Williams, a stumpy colored girl, attired in as many bits of gay color as she could get on her, pleaded not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct, and Policeman Harrison took the stand.

"About 9:30 last night this girl had some trouble, with a youngster on M street in Georgetown, and I arrested her."

"Did she use profane language?"

"Yes, sir, she was very profane."

"Jedge, yo' honor," said Hattle, as she came around from the dock, weeping copiously, "I wus in a restaurant at de corner ob Bridge an' Market streets, an' wen I cum ont dey wus two officers dere, an' dey arres'ed me."

"Why were you swearing?"

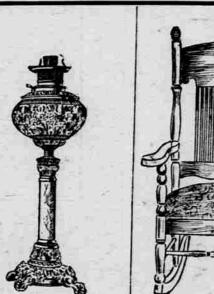

"I wasn't cussin'; wasn't doin' nothin," declared Hattie, with a fresh outburst of tears.

James Martin and Harry Chandler, young white men, were arraigned by Officer Mullin on a charge of vagrancy and Officer Mullin on a charge of vagrancy and pleaded not guilty.

"What were they doing, Mr. Mullin?" asked Judge Kimball.
"They were begging last night, your honor, in front of the Washington Losn and Trust Building."
"Thirty days each."
Albert Morris. Annie Morris, Phoebe Shepberd and Ida Mason, a quartet of negroes from Schwingbeimer's alley, in the Pirst precinct, were arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. Peliceman Williams made the arrest. Ida pleaded guilty, but the rest demed the charge. out the rest demed the charge.

"Did you see any blows struck?" asked Lawyer Peyton.
"No; the fight was over when I got there."
"Well, I'll make a witness of that woman who pleaded guilty," said Judge Kimball.
Ida, with face bruised and lip swollen,
came out of the dock and took the stand.
"How did your lip get so swollen?"
asked the judge.
"I don't know," replied Ida, winking at her companion. "I reckon I got drunk an'
de pavement hit me."
"What happened down in the alley last asleep."

"These people won't tell the truth, your honor," said Officer Williams.
"This woman can pay a fine of $5. The other three are diamissed."

Ida stepped back into the cell room, and as Phoebe frisked out of the court room behind the other two, she said:

"Dat gal's a chump. She hadn't oughter plead guilty."
